	4. On 16 December, the Birago Kaserne in Melk (0 49/w 68) was apparently occupied to capacity. An observation post on the roof was unoccupied.  Two artillery pieces, probably 76-mm M 1942 field guns, were standing in a garage. Officers and EM wearing red-bordered black epaulets were seen at the installation. A group of 16 soldiers with red-bordered black epaulets led by a senior lieutenant with black-bordered black epaulets left the Birago Kaserne and marched toward the Danube Meadows. The soldiers carried four tripods and four cases. A group of 36 soldiers led by a major wearing black-bordered red epaulets with artillery insignia marched toward the small woods south of the installation for training. The soldiers were equipped with carbines 25X and gasmasks. Two telephone sections, including a leader, a soldier carrying reels, and two pole bearers each, marched toward the same direction. The soldiers were red-bordered black epaulets.  A few officers with red-bordered black or black-bordered black epaulets, but no EM, were observed in the town.2
25X1A 25X1C	1. Comment. The observations from St. Poelten and Camp Spratzern do not furnish new information.
25X1A 25X1C	2. Comment. Units stationed in Mauer Oehling include the 290th Gas Mtz Rifle Regt, and in Melk the 233rd Gds Gun Arty Regt of the 95th Gds Mtz Rifle Div.  In mid-December 1953, training of recruits was intensive, and included basic training, firing practice with carbines, and special training, probably with aiming circles and telephone equipment.
